What's new in Burrow:

es Bay: A Myrtle- and Rosie-Free New Zealand Burrowes Bay is a beautiful, peaceful, New Zealand outdoor-retreat community with luxury active homes, a white-sand beach, crystal-clear waters and a four-star restaurant (see below). What is not to like? I didn't learn this as I researched and built this article, but now that I live there, I'm happy to report that Burrowes Bay is not only a dream come true, it's also a warm, welcoming place where I love to spend time. I hope you'll find there's nothing but love where I have come from, but it's always better at home. Burrowes Bay is a peaceful, wonderful, New Zealand suburblet in the retirement village Playground Village (thanks to Antonella for recommending the Playground Village). When I look at pictures of Burrowes Bay, I love it so much that when I built my own share-house, I don't think I could find another home where I could be happier. In the 1940s Burrowes Bay was first home to the historic Southesk lighthouse (I can't find a direct link to a picture of it; it's a black-and-white photo of the lighthouse on Youtube, as the grey-and-white photo below led me to it). In the 1940s, Burrowes Bay was the site of the Burrowes Air Raid Shelter (read an account here) in Bluff, a New Zealand national landmark. There's some age-old pine-tree danger music and more at the end of the article...

There are gorgeous houses with spectacular views, lavish lanais, convenient in-house car garaging, unlimited swimming and diving in a family-friendly environment, and an attractive beach fringed with two surf beaches and protected from the ocean by an easy-to-walk beach at high tide. It's most notable for the residents: antiques-and-toy collectors. [More information on Burrowes Bay can be found
